

VICTOR LECHTENBERG

Victor L. Lechtenberg became Purdue University's Vice Provost for Engagement in July 2004. Previously he served as Dean of Agriculture at Purdue University for 10 years. As dean, Lechtenberg was responsible for Purdue University's teaching, research, and extension education programs for agriculture and natural resources. As Vice Provost, Dr. Lechtenberg works to align the university's intellectual and other resources to assist in the state's economic growth and to address the many challenges facing the state's business and industry.

Lechtenberg has been an active leader on the state and national levels with respect to research and technology policy and an advocate for technology linked economic growth. He co-directs the Purdue Center for Regional Development

Lechtenberg received his B.S. degree from the University of Nebraska and his Ph.D. from Purdue University.